

The World of HIRSCHFELD⁸

"The subject which turns me on is people," says Al Hirschfeld. And his response to people has been to engage in "the adventure of translating personality into graphic symbols." That is, caricature.

He does this so well that his subjects begin to look like his drawings of them—that is what he himself considers a successful likeness.

Hirschfeld people are certainly unmistakable, whether they are from the theater, which is Hirschfeld's favorite field, or from some other sphere in public life. Hirschfeld drawings appear regularly in The New York Times, as well as many other magazines and periodicals. His works are also included in the permanent collections of museums across the country and around the world.

The drawings on this page are among those now collected together in "The World of Hirschfeld," published by Harry N. Abrams, Inc.

The number after his name in the headline refers to the number of times the word "Nina" may be found in the drawings reproduced here. It's the name of his daughter, and it's been a game ever since she was born in 1945 for him to hide the name in his drawings—a game his followers play with enthusiasm. Can you find all the Ninas?

Says French Think Only of 1957 Incident

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, reporting on his goodwill trip to France, said that the only name the French "associated with Arkansas was Little Rock in 1957."

Rockefeller was referring to the crisis that developed over the desegregation of Little Rock Central High School in 1957.

Rockefeller said, however, that he told the French that Arkansas was "a vastly different" state than it was in 1957.

Rockefeller denied a report that gravel was thrown at he

Treatment of Retarded to Be Uniform

By PEGGY SIMPSON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Establishment of accreditation standards for mental retardation centers will emphasize the unique character of each individual—and that person's right to develop his limited potential, according to the program's director.

"We feel that each individual resident is entitled to an adequate program to meet his needs," Dr. Kenneth G. Crosby, head of the Accreditation Council for Facilities for the Mentally Retarded, said in an interview.

Many mentally retarded persons today are subjected to impersonal custodial care, he added. But the standards being developed, and expected to be implemented by 1971, will call for improvements in physical facilities, treatment, and, most importantly, attitude, he said.

"Many things can be accomplished by changes in attitude, in the way residents of these facilities are viewed," Crosby stated.

"If the resident is seen as an individual who lacks potential for development, then the chances are very great no development will occur," he explained.

"If he is viewed as having potential, then that itself is apt to accomplish some improvement."

The council is consulting with parents and specialists in about 30 fields relating to mental retardation to shape standards for accreditation.

Crosby said human rights, especially as they relate to an institution's programs for its residents, will be stressed.

Institutions hewing to the voluntary accreditation standards almost certainly will require more money, he said.

But he added the very existence of national standards may be a tool for persuading legislatures to appropriate more funds for these services.

Crosby said the accreditation standards will be available both to the estimated 200 tax-supported institutions and the 200 or more private facilities for the mentally retarded.

Here is a hand that seems to have caused a lot of discussion in Decatur, Ill. Mrs. William Hays writes in part, "I think it would really be poison in a duplicate game."

It sure would. Some North-South pairs might work their way up to six diamonds, a few would play four hearts, but most would land in three no-trump and go down one or two tricks. The suit bidders would go down even more. Thus, minus 100 North-South would be a very good score.

Some might underbid and stop at a part score. The underbidding would be well rewarded this time.

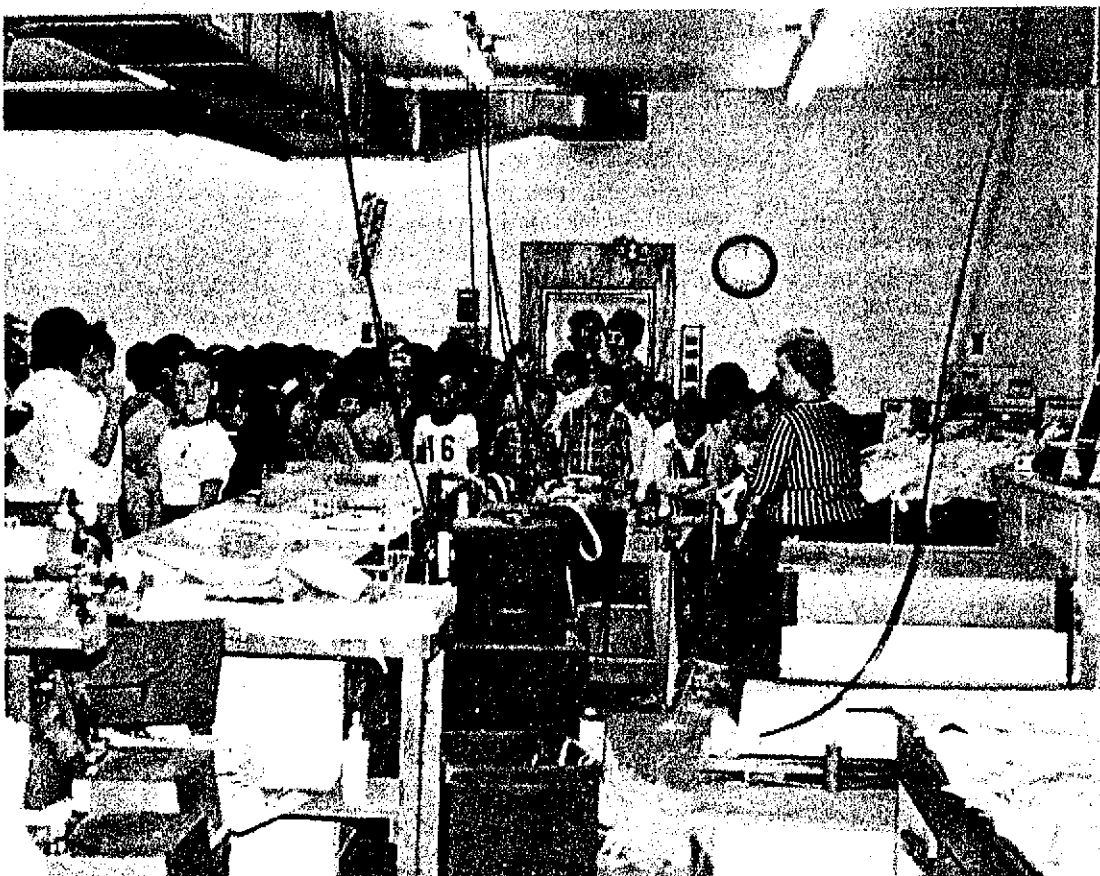

Somewhere, if the hand were played often enough a South player might well make three no-trump. It would require poor defense but poor defense is not an impossibility.

Suppose that West opens his fourth best spade. South wins with the 10 and leads a low diamond. West discards a heart. East wins the trick and instead of returning a spade decides to play a club. Now all South has to do is to win that trick, cash four hearts and the other high club and play a third club. Assuming that West has hung on to his highest clubs, West will be end-played and forced to lead away from his king of spades at the end of the hand.

Or West might open the five of clubs. This allows dummy's 10 of clubs to win the first trick. South tests the diamonds unsuccessfully and East is in. Now if East does not shift to a spade

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Tooth Decay And the Pill

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

The pill has flumped again. Just the other afternoon, at a cocktail pahdee, a cute young thing asked me, when she discovered I was a dentist, if the pill had anything to do with tooth decay. She said that since taking the pill she has had far more fillings than before.

With a mild harrumph, I assured her that it was rather doubtful there was any connection with the pill and a higher incidence of tooth decay; that the pill has been blamed FOR many things, and tooth decay has been blamed ON many things . . . but never have the two been linked so unromantically.

But the thought of the pill increasing tooth decay kept recurring. After all the pill alters the balance of many body functions. It contains steroids which can produce hormonal imbalance, and hormonal imbalance is often associated with gingivitis and other gum disturbances, such as sometimes occur during puberty, pregnancy and menopause.

Could it possibly have a direct effect on teeth?

Alas! Today there came in the mail a news release with information that Dr. Frank T. Y. Liu of Kansas City, Mo., makes the claim that . . . use of synthetic steroid contraceptives may increase the incidence of tooth decay."

How do you like that?

South will be able to cash out clubs and hearts and eventually force West to give him a second spade trick.

What do you do now?
A—Did four no-trump. You plan to gamble on six diamonds if partner shows two aces.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Your partner bids five spades to show three aces. What do you do now?

Answer Monday

It must be hastily added that Dr. Liu's findings were obtained from animal experiments which cannot be applied directly to humans, but the University of Missouri scientist says they point up the need for further investigation.

In his laboratory experiments, Dr. Liu learned that tooth decay increase was in proportion to dose level and frequency of administration of the two contraceptives used in the tests. Not as some would believe, dependent on sexual activity of the animal.

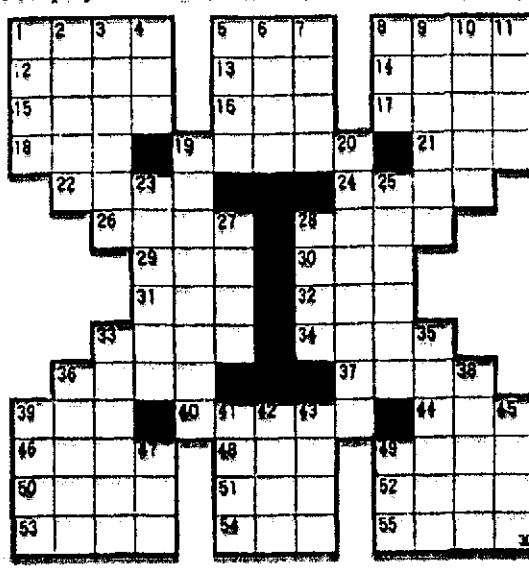

Don't forsake the pill yet. So far indications are that only laboratory animals have to do that.

Rogers Going to Spain for Talk on Bases

By FENTON WHEELER

Associated Press Writer

MADRID (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers was flying to Madrid today to discuss keeping U.S. bases in Spain open and to report on the NATO meeting that ended Wednesday in Rome.

Rogers was expected to help along the negotiations for a new bases agreement, but he was not expected to reach a formal understanding with Gen. Francisco Franco's government during his overnight stay.

The agreement under which the United States operates a naval base and three air bases in Spain expires Sept. 26, and talks on a new agreement have been going on for some time.

Informed sources said the United States and Spain are thinking in terms of a new five-year agreement under which Spain would receive military, educational and scientific assistance in return for allowing the bases to remain open.

Spain was said to be seeking tanks, F4 Phantom jets, and money for scientific projects and educational expansion. Informants declined to guess at the cost of the package, but unconfirmed estimates have ranged from $200 million to $300 million for the five years.

U.S. secretaries of state customarily visit Spain following each semiannual meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to brief Franco and his government on NATO developments.

Spain is not a member of NATO, and Spanish sources say the government has no interest in joining. But they say Spain would like some kind of mutual security agreement stronger than the one it now has with the United States.

Diplomatic sources in Madrid said the United States considered suggesting Spain for NATO membership during the Rome meeting, but there was such strong Scandinavian opposition it dropped the idea.

The NATO allies announced at the close of their two-day meeting that they may meet with nations of the Soviet bloc in the general conference on European security the Kremlin has proposed if exploratory talks are promising.

The 15 foreign ministers said in a communique that if there is sufficient progress in current preliminary negotiations, especially those going on now about Berlin and Germany, they will be ready to make multilateral contacts.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart pointed out that deputy foreign ministers of the seven Warsaw Pact nations are now in conference in Poland, and the NATO council indicated it would like its communique delivered to them before their meeting ends.

Italian Foreign Minister Aldo Moro was asked to relay the communique, along with an accompanying declaration calling for an East-West program of mutual, balanced reduction of forces in central Europe.

PSC Denies Rehearing in Arkla Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Public Service Commission says it will not hold a rehearing on its decision upholding the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co.'s policy of disconnecting service without notice to customers who pay their bills with bad checks.

The PSC held a hearing on the policy April 14 and, in a 2-1 decision, said bad check procedure was approved by the commission in 1956 and was part of the utility's standard rules and regulations.

Mrs. David A. Hibbs of Little Rock, who had asked the PSC to invalidate the firm's policy, also requested the rehearing.

Seaver Fine, Mets Don't Get the Runs

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
What's wrong with Tom Seaver, who's lost three straight games and four of his last five decisions?

The answer is nothing really that a few New York Met runs wouldn't cure.

Seaver, 7-4, suffered his third shutout in the last 2½ weeks Friday night when Houston blanked the Mets 5-0. In his other loss, the Mets managed a single run for him and that came after he was lifted for a pinch hitter. In the last 28 innings Seaver has pitched, that run is the only one the Mets have scored.

The Mets gave Seaver his usual quota of no runs Friday night and Houston belted him, bunched five hits for four runs in the fifth inning.

Elsewhere, Atlanta tripped Philadelphia 5-2, Cincinnati dumped Montreal 6-4, Los Angeles defeated St. Louis 8-6 and Pittsburgh took San Francisco 6-3. San Diego and Chicago had the day off.

In the American League, Washington nipped Kansas City 5-4 in 12 innings, Boston edged Chicago 4-3. New York downed Minnesota 4-2, Detroit topped Milwaukee 5-4, Cleveland edged Oakland 2-1 and Baltimore dropped California 3-0.

Houston's Toy Cannon, Jimmy Wynn, exploded on Seaver, tagging last year's Cy Young Award winner for a two-run double in the fifth and a solo homer two innings later. Doug Rader also homered for the Astros.

Tom Griffin, who has never been scored upon in 29 2-3 career innings against New York, and Jack Billingham combined for the three-hit shutouts. Griffin was forced to leave the game with two out in the fifth when he was struck in the elbow by Jerry Grote's single.

Pat Jarvis waited out three rain delays and rode a four-run Atlanta spurt in the seventh inning to his victory over Philadelphia. Jarvis scattered eight hits and struck out nine.

Hank Aaron's two-run double followed by Rico Carty's 11th homer of the year turned the game around for the Braves with two out in the seventh. The game was delayed 45 minutes at the start, five minutes in the third inning and one hour, five minutes in the fifth.

Bobby Tolan rapped his first homer since May 5—a two-run shot in the ninth inning that moved Cincinnati past Montreal. John Bench also homered for the Reds.

The Reds stranded 16 men in the first seven innings, then tied the score in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Tommy Helms and won it in the ninth on Tolan's homer.

Willie Davis cracked two triples and a single, driving in four runs and scoring two as Los Angeles blew a 4-0 lead and then bounced back to beat St. Louis.

Consecutive doubles by pinch hitter Ted Sizemore and Maury Wills in the sixth inning regained the lead for the Dodgers and then Davis' ninth inning single delivered an insurance run.

Bob Veale struck out 12 and, with ninth inning help from Dave Giusti, pitched Pittsburgh past San Francisco.

Veale and Fred Patek also contributed punt singles to a three-run Pirate rally in the sixth inning which was climaxed by Matty Alou's two-run single.

Blue Moon has become Sam McDowell's favorite tune, but Boogie Woogie is still No. 1 on Mike Cuellar's hit parade.

McDowell danced past arch-rival John "Blue Moon" Odom Friday night at Oakland, firing a two-hitter and striking out 13 as the Cleveland Indians shaded the A's 2-1.

At Anaheim, meanwhile, John "Boog" Powell stopped the music with a two-run eighth inning homer which backed Cuellar's three-hit, 10-strikeout pitching and gave the Baltimore Orioles a 2-0 victory over the California Angels.

In other American League games, the New York Yankees downed Minnesota 4-2; Boston nipped the Chicago White Sox 4-3; Detroit edged Milwaukee 5-4 and Washington crept past Kansas City 5-4 in 12 innings.

In the National League, Houston blanked the New York Mets 5-0; Cincinnati topped Montreal 6-4; Pittsburgh beat San Francisco 6-3; Los Angeles cuffed St. Louis 8-6 and Atlanta trimmed Philadelphia 5-2. San Francisco and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

McDowell and Odom, who sounded off at each other last season before and after the Cleveland fireballer's 10-4 victory in their lone confrontation, came out humming in their first rematch.

McDowell and Odom, who sounded off at each other last season before and after the Cleveland fireballer's 10-4 victory in their lone confrontation, came out humming in their first rematch.

McDowell held the A's hitless until Joe Rudi homered in the fourth inning, then limited them to a seventh inning single by Felipe Alou and struck out the side in the ninth to nail his seventh victory in 10 decisions. He has beaten Oakland four times in a row, beginning last season.

Odom, 4-4, allowed four hits and struck out eight before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth, but was the victim of errors by short stop Bert Campaneris in the third and seventh that handed the Indians two "unearned" runs and their first victory in six games.

Both antagonists drew warnings from the umpires in the fourth, after Odom twice brushed back Cleveland's Roy Foster and McDowell retaliated with a fast ball over the head of Rick Monday.

Odom triggered the feud last spring, after a 3-0 victory at Cleveland, by proclaiming: "I feel like I can shut out the Indians any time I take the mound."

Cuellar, 5-3, didn't match McDowell's low-hit or high-strikeout figures, but he did fan four California batters in the fourth inning to tie an American League record. He got the last three after Alex Johnson reached first on a third strike passed ball.

Angels ace Andy Messersmith battled Cuellar on even terms until the eighth, when Frank Robinson poked a two-out single just out of shortstop Jim Fregosi's reach and Powell, the AL home run leader, slammed his 14th of the season into the right field stands.

The Yankees survived two homers by Minnesota's Rick Renick as Lindy McDaniel pitched scoreless relief over the final 3 2-3 innings to preserve Mike Kekich's first victory of the season.

Gerry Moses' bases-loaded single climaxed a three-run rally in the ninth, carrying the Red Sox past Chicago. Billy Conigliaro tied the game with a two-run single.

Jim Northrup's two-run homer in the seventh gave Mickey Lolich a 5-1 lead at Milwaukee and the Tigers hung on to extend the Brewers' losing streak to seven games.

The Senators overcame Joe Keough's two-run homer in the top of the 12th with a three-run rally capped by Del Unser's single. Bernie Allen tied the game with a two-run single and scored on Unser's hit.

Runs batted in—Perez, Cincinnati 49; H. Aaron, Atlanta 45. Hits—Carty, Atlanta 68; Perez, Cincinnati 68.

ORLANDO CEPEDA was once referred to as a "Baby Bull." Pirates' Richie Hebner thinks he still is one, after Orlando's slide sent him flying through the air.

RICHELLE ALLEN ISN'T GRIMACING at the fans this time. He's sliding hard now with his new team, the Cardinals, and Expos' Ron Brand, among others, can't stop him.

Iowa Seeking New Athletic Director

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Three men—one at the University of Iowa, another in Iowa City and a third at the University of Michigan—have been interviewed in connection with Iowa's search for a new athletic director, it was disclosed Thursday night.

An informed source said the leading candidate for the job so far seems to be Chalmers "Bump" Elliott, associate athletic director at Michigan and a Hawkeye assistant football coach who gained great popularity in the state from 1952 to 1956.

The university's Board in Control of Athletics has also reportedly talked with Iowa athletic business manager Francis "Bus" Graham, now acting athletic director, and former Hawkeye football great Jerry Hilgenberg, now an Iowa City real estate man.

The post will be vacant June 30 after the resignation last week of Forest Evashevsky, who was elevated from football coach to athletic director in 1960 after building Iowa's football program into national prominence, including the production of two Rose Bowl champions.

BATTING—Willie Davis, May 30, Dodgers, stroked three hits, including a pair of triples and drove in four runs in Los Angeles' 8-6 triumph over St. Louis.
PITCHING—Sam McDowell, Indians, fired two-hitter and struck out 13 as Cleveland edged Oakland 2-1.

McDowell and Odom, who sounded off at each other last season before and after the Cleveland fireballer's 10-4 victory in their lone confrontation, came out humming in their first rematch.

McDowell held the A's hitless until Joe Rudi homered in the fourth inning, then limited them to a seventh inning single by Felipe Alou and struck out the side in the ninth to nail his seventh victory in 10 decisions. He has beaten Oakland four times in a row, beginning last season.

Odom, 4-4, allowed four hits and struck out eight before leaving for a pinch hitter in the eighth, but was the victim of errors by short stop Bert Campaneris in the third and seventh that handed the Indians two "unearned" runs and their first victory in six games.

Both antagonists drew warnings from the umpires in the fourth, after Odom twice brushed back Cleveland's Roy Foster and McDowell retaliated with a fast ball over the head of Rick Monday.

The Unwritten Codes

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Baseball players wear uniforms on the field and are expected—even pressured—by their peers to be uniform off the field, too.

Dick Hall, approaching 40, and Dave Leonhard, 28, pitchers for the Baltimore Orioles who also hold bachelor of arts degrees from two highly respected universities, Swarthmore and Johns Hopkins, were discussing this in the clubhouse recently.

"A baseball team," said Hall, "is a self-contained little world where deviation from the norm—from clothes to philosophy—is looked upon with a certain amount of suspicion."

"If you dress radically different," said Leonhard, "you'll be harassed into wearing the prescribed stuff, dressing in the unwritten code that includes things like cardigan sweaters."

"I remember I had this dynamite sport jacket—it was really something. A tan crusader that was sort of frayed and washed-out and when I took it off I'd wad it up. Well, some of the players here were really upset by it. They told me I was a disgrace to the club."

"We also have that kangaroo court here. And I must have been fined 30 times last season for coming to the ball park without socks."

The length of Leonhard's blond hair also was criticized. His sideburns are moderately long—not even reaching his earlobes, and his hair in back does not curl over his collar.

"To some," said Leonhard, "this was a symbol of moral turpitude. It also made me out to be a radical. I'm not—although I'm surely to the left politically of just about anyone on the team. I mean, I don't like the war and things like that."

Hall laughed. "I'd say that, overall, baseball players are border-line right-wingers. Their backgrounds have been, uh, anti-intellectual. I think you'd call it."

"And they're antistudent, in general. Lately we've had many discussions in the bullpen about the world situation, from campus rebellion to the war in Indochina. I think the players on this team think the same way most other ballplayers think—that if students throw rocks at policemen and soldiers, then they'd better be prepared for the consequences. Pete Richert, for example, was called up by the National Guard last year when there was rioting in Washington. And you know from what he says he's a good National Guardsman."

"I went through a liberal stage when I was in college. I thought the world needed remaking. But baseball players, even those the age of students, are really a part of the Establishment, in general. They have money, and students usually don't. And they have stock market investments, a house, often a family."

"I'm still a staunch integrationist, a staunch internationalist. But I'm also now a staunch backer of Wall Street. I'm against oil import quotas, but I want to see oil stocks go up."

Wives are also viewed for their conventionality. "Many of the other players' wives are dressed to the hilt with tons of false eyelashes and make-up at games," said Leonhard. "My wife sits with them and wears slacks. This wasn't accepted too well, at first. Bad image, you know. But now I think they're used to it."

Speech is another type of conformity. "Most players have stereotyped ways of talking," said Leonhard. "It's funny, players come from all over the country, but they quickly lose their accents—I think Brooks Robinson still has a little Arkansas twang left, though—and they adopt identical word usage. For example, go on any team and you'll hear a fast ball described as 'good heat' or an 'aspirin' or 'BB's' or a 'blue dart.' And, sure, it's probably true, narrow speech patterns lead to narrow thought patterns."

"But," said Hall, "I think most ballplayers are really apolitical. They mainly think and talk baseball, as I do. And they're willing to pay the price of conformity to live such a good life."

IRA BERKOW Alley Basketball Ruffles Milwaukee

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Shock hit first, followed befuddlement, outrage and anger, in very rapid order. Alderman Clarence M. Miller recently asked the Milwaukee Common Council to approve an ordinance which would provide a $500 fine or 90 days in jail for anyone caught shooting baskets at an outdoor hoop in an alley.

If it comes to pass, it would be the most popular law since England taxed our tea. And now, in that town of gemuetlichkeit, the burghers are incensed, as if someone requested to destroy their beer taps.

Letters poured in to Alderman Miller. One, tear-stained, from a very young lass, implored that the ordinance not be passed because playing in the alley was a favorite date with her boy friend.

Indignation was especially rampant among fathers. Since the Milwaukee Bucks came to town two years ago as an expansion team, and primarily since last season when the Bucks paid $1.4 million for elongated center Lew Alcindor, basketball enthusiasm has flourished.

"Now," said Miller, "Every father has his son out playing basketball because he feels that if Lew can get all that money, so can his son. And last Christmas, basketballs and hoops were very popular gifts."

"All our alleys are lighted now. And since we don't have enough adequate playground space for all those who want to play, alleys have become necessary places to hook up a backboard and basket."

But complaints, particularly from elderly citizens, began streaming across the alderman's desk: the thump of the ball kept many awake; one woman grumbled that as soon as she replaced one $16 window in her garage, it was shattered again by a wayward pass. Another bemoaned the trampling of freshly planted flower beds.

And kids were playing into all hours of the night. There was even a group of teen-agers who, upon finishing their late rounds of delivering pizzas, assembled for a hot game of hoops, attendant with cries of foul and assorted whoops, at 3 a.m. Neighbors woke with a start and thought World War III was erupting in their kitchens.

Police were called. "But," said Miller, "officers have boys, too. And they were often out shooting baskets with them."

Miller explained emphatically that he likes basketball as well as the next nut and did not intend an outright ban. His sole purpose was to get an all-out ruling, once and for all, on exactly how long into the night the boom-boom of a basketball will be tolerated.

He added that even Alcindor must have played basketball on an alley hoop. And so have most of the rest of us. In the warm evening air, there is nothing so delicious as the feeling of a ball on one's fingertips, and the salty taste of sweat on one's lips, and sinking a basket to the rattle of the rim.

(And even on wintry evenings, there is something almost mystical under the white of stars and snowflakes and heaving a shot with gloved hand against the wet dull of the backboards.)

Alley basketball has even entered our literature. In "Rabbit Run," John Updike begins his novel: "Boys are playing basketball around a telephone pole with a backboard bolted to it. Legs, shouts. The scrape and snap of Keds on loose alley pebbles seems to catapult their voices high into the moist March air blue above the wires."

So the game is a growing and loved American tradition, and kids should play to their little hearts' content—as long as they keep out of my damn alley. It's my strange custom to be asleep at three in the morning.

The Answer To Junk Mail

It's Official now. The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld a law that permits the private citizen to cut off the mail addressed to his home, and to bring government action against mass mailers who refuse to take their names off mailing lists.

Writing for a unanimous court, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said Monday that a 1967 postal law gave householders unfettered power to judge for themselves what mail the postman can deposit in their mailboxes.

Burger declared: "The power of the household under the statute is unlimited. He or she may prohibit the mailing of a dry goods catalogue because he objects to the contents."

Here is the solution to the junk mail problem. If you want to be relieved of the necessity of getting rid of mailed trash, instruct the post office to warn the offending firms to take your name off their mailing list. It's that simple. — Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch

March Against Fear Reset for June 22

COTTON PLANT, Ark. (AP) — A leader of the group known as Community Organization Methods Build Absolute Teamwork (COMBAT) says a "march against fear" across Woodruff County has been rescheduled for June 22.

The Rev. Roy Laird of Cotton Plant made the announcement Wednesday.

The march was to have begun Tuesday, but was postponed because Laird and other leaders of COMBAT were in court. Laird, Rev. Cato Brooks and Rev. Laverne Swain were found guilty in Augusta Municipal Court Tuesday of disturbing the peace.

"If we had any intention of postponing the march we are more determined now than ever to hold it because of the unjust treatment we received in court..." Laird said.

He said the march will begin south of Cotton Plant on June 22 and end the following date at the courthouse in Augusta.

"We will apply for a parade permit, but if it is denied we will march," Laird said.

Appeal in the Arkla Gas Case Is Expected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Public Service Commission's decision to uphold the policy of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. of disconnecting service without notice to customers who pay their bills with bad checks is to be appealed to Circuit Court.

Spokesmen for the Grassroots Organization for Utility Users Protection (GROUP) said the organization would file the appeal. The organization also said it would propose "appropriate" legislation to the next session of the General Assembly.

The PSC refused Wednesday to hold a rehearing on its decision upholding the policy of the utility.

Mrs. David A. Hibbs of Little Rock had asked the commission to overturn the firm's policy after Arkla discontinued her service Dec. 30 because a check she had written to pay her bill was not honored because of insufficient funds in the bank.

Memorial Day Deaths Estimated

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council estimated today that between 350 and 450 persons will be killed in traffic accidents over the Memorial Day weekend.

The period covered by the estimate is from 6 p.m. local time Friday until midnight Sunday, roughly two days but actually 54 hours. The last two-day observance of Memorial Day was in 1959; the death toll was 310.

IT'S BARELY POSSIBLE that "Scandy" is imitating human litterbugs in this little charade. Photographed in New York's Central Park zoo, the 5-year-old, 700-pound polar bear seems to be drinking from a beer keg and then tossing it aside. Could he be called a "polar polluter"?

SEA OF MATRIMONY is more than a cliché for this couple in Kesten, Germany. Flood conditions forced them to travel by rubber dinghy to church for their wedding. Local firemen did the rowing for the wedding party and guests.

Wires Damaged Before Apollo 13 Launched

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Wiring insulation inside an oxygen tank which exploded on Apollo 13 may have been seriously damaged before the ill-fated moon mission was launched, the chairman of the committee studying the space accident says.

Edgar M. Cortright, chairman of the Apollo 13 review board, said Wednesday that several days before the launch the tank had been filled with oxygen for a rehearsal, and afterwards workmen were unable to drain it in the normal way.

He said special procedures were then used to remove the oxygen, and these "probably resulted in major damage to the wiring insulation" inside the tank.

The tank exploded April 13, as Apollo 13 was more than halfway to the moon. The explosion blew off a panel of the service module, destroyed the spacecraft's major supply of oxygen and electricity, forced cancellation of the moon landing and seriously endangered the astronauts.

Cortright said the possibility of damage during the drainage operation was discovered during recent tests at the Beech Aircraft plant in Boulder, Colo. The special drainage procedures were duplicated at Beech, which manufactures the tank.

Cortright also said it now appears that two switches designed to keep heaters in the oxygen tank from overheating may also have failed. Tests have shown, he said, that such a failure would cause temperatures in the tank to reach 1,000 degrees.

"Such temperatures would have caused serious damage to the insulation around the heater wires," Cortright said. "The insulation damage could have resulted in short circuits to initiate the combustion of insulation inside the tank."

This burning would, in turn, cause pressure to rise in the tank, eventually forcing the tank to explode.

Montoya Is Cleared of Wrongdoing

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Sen. Joseph M. Montoya is heading into New Mexico's primary election Tuesday with a last-minute campaign bonus from a panel of his Senate colleagues.

The Senate Ethics Committee Thursday issued a report clearing Montoya of any wrongdoing in connection with alleged payoffs for the introduction of special immigration bills.

Senate sources said at least 10 senators testified during the committee investigation, prompted by published reports of bribery for the introduction of bills to head off the deportation of Chinese seamen who jump ship in the United States.

The committee said it found no evidence any senator or employee was bribed to introduce legislation.

The report mentioned no names. Sen. Harrison B. Williams, D-N.J., another of the senators involved in the inquiry, also is running in a Tuesday primary.

Sources close to the committee said the report was issued simply because it was ready, without regard to Tuesday's announced balloting.

But the case was of special importance in New Mexico, where it has become an issue in a campaign looking past the primary to the Nov. 3 general election.

Montoya repeatedly had urged members of the bipartisan committee to hasten release of the report. Even before Thursday's announcement, his allies in New Mexico had been spreading the word that the findings cleared the senator.

Hatfield Pays U.S. to Cover Postage Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mark Hatfield has written a $2,175 personal check to the Post Office to cover cost of mailing some antiwar material the Senate Rules Committee says was originally sent illegally under his free postage privilege.

The Oregon Republican had the check hand delivered to an assistant postmaster general after the committee ruled in a rare action Wednesday he had violated franking regulations.

It may not be ended, however. The Senate Ethics Committee is reported looking into Hatfield's use of the free mail privilege as well as antiwar material mailed under the frank of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Hatfield said his check represented the cost of mailing 35,000 letters signed by antiwar leaders Sam Brown and Dave Hawk urging support of an amendment to end the war in Indochina.

An aide said Hatfield is hoping to recover the funds from $300,000 in contributions received in response to a May 12 television appeal he and other sponsors of the amendment made to build public support.

The Rules Committee in deciding Hatfield's franking privilege had been abused did not go into the question of reimbursement or who was at fault, an aide said.

Concerning the Senate's bipartisan ethics committee inquiry, the panel's counsel, Benjamin R. Fern, told a reporter "there is nothing that can be said at this point."

Bahy said earlier this month he had sent each of his fellow senators an article dealing with constitutional aspects of U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

He said he wrote a two-line covering letter sent out under his frank in which he told his colleagues he thought they might find the article helpful. In one case at least, he said, aides apparently failed to insert his letter with the article.

Nation Starts Memorial Day Ceremonies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation marches under many banners in honor of its war dead today, with veterans' organizations leading hundreds of Memorial Day ceremonies and antiwar groups rallying against the Indochina war in at least a dozen large cities.

Millions of motorists jammed the country's highways en route to visits with relatives and picnics at lakes, national parks and seashores. The National Safety Council predicted that between 350 and 450 persons would be killed in holiday motor travel.

President Nixon was in California for the weekend, with Sen. John G. Tower, R-Texas, to fill in for him in laying a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

A parade from Capitol Hill to the Washington Monument was planned by a peace group.

In an effort to avert clashes officials in New York, Chicago and Detroit scheduled veterans' parades and antiwar demonstrations at different times and in different parts of town.

An air show at Selfridge Air Force Base near Detroit was canceled when a peace group announced plans to picket outside the installation.

In Englewood, N.J., two American Legion posts withdrew from the Memorial Day parade when an antiwar group announced it would take part. Other veterans' organizations said they would march as usual when the peace group agreed to take off their black armbands and carry only placards identifying the demonstrators.

In Honolulu, where Boy Scouts placed tiny American flags and flower leis on 17,000 grave markers in the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific in Punchbowl Crater, a memorial service was to be highlighted by the rereading of a eulogy to World War II correspondent Ernie Pyle by Buck Buchwach, managing editor of the Honolulu Advertiser.

In Los Angeles, Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., was to address a ceremony at Hollywood Memorial Park, where many servicemen and a number of movie stars are buried.

In Tucson, Ariz., construction workers planned to march in support of the University of Arizona administration and Tucson police for their handling of campus antiwar demonstrations. The student government announced support of the march and planned to pass out punch and cookies to the workers.

Arkansas' seven television stations and 97 radio stations were asked to observe 30 minutes of silence in memory of the war dead.

In Greensburg, Ky., hundreds of fiddlers, banjo and guitar pickers and country music enthusiasts gathered for a weekend of picking and singing. The festival was described as "unpolitical."

Massive Oil Slick Off Galveston

By PAUL RECER

Associated Press Writer
GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — A massive oil slick caused by an offshore platform explosion that left four men dead and nine missing moved today toward Galveston's beaches, the destination of thousands of holiday travelers.

The explosion ruptured an oil storage tank on the platform 12 miles offshore, and oil spewed into the Gulf of Mexico. The Coast Guard said an oil slick was headed toward this resort island's main attraction—its beaches.

Dozens of volunteers pitched in to line the beaches with absorbent hay to soak up the oil as it washed ashore Friday.

Even as workers tackled the oil slick, tourists began invading the island city for the Memorial Day weekend. The crowds were described as heavier than usual, bolstered by some 4,000 Shriners here in convention.

Broadcasting in Many Ways Has Changed Down Through Ages

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

"Do you get the message?" We have all been asked this question at some time, but today we are looking at it from several standpoints.

This May 1970 has marked the 50th anniversary of broadcasting. We have made great strides in this field, and even people in the most remote areas are able to obtain news at almost the instant it occurs. No barrier of land or sea can interfere with our spread of communications. The Iron Curtain has even been conquered by the air waves.

We conclude that progress has been made. But has it? The first national Congress on Communications planned cooperatively by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders in the field of communication has recently met, and leaders of all the major faiths discovered they have a common problem—lack of communication within and without the church family of the truths that make for peace.

A glance at the headlines of this paper show what we mean. There is little news, domestic or world-wide, that has a peaceful tone. The lack of communication between nations has earth-shattering results, but not any more so than the lack of communications between generations that is generally labeled the Generation Gap.

What can be done to Bridge the Gap, make better connections, and establish more worthwhile communications? We all could begin today, Memorial Day 1970, by becoming more conscious of what the generations who have fallen on the battlefields in our behalf were fighting and dying for.

"To make the world safe for democracy," "for God and Country," "to preserve and protect home and family" are not merely high flown phrases to be memorized by school children and resounded by orators, get the message? . . .

They are what Americans have believed in, struggled for, and held as their hope for the future. Through every trial, our forefathers maintained respect for themselves, God, and their fellowman. That is what sustained them. That is what, as yet, might save us.

Enemy Takes S. Vietnam Resort City

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops seized parts of the South Vietnamese resort city of Dalat today in the heaviest assault on a city since the big enemy offensives of 1968. By dusk, there was still street fighting.

Authorities clamped a 24-hour curfew on the city of 80,000, which lies in the southern central highlands 160 miles north-east of Saigon. The commercial airport was closed.

First reports from Dalat said Viet Cong attacked 13 installations in and around the provincial capital and cut the military network linking the provincial headquarters and the communications center two miles away.

One target was the National Military Academy, the West Point of South Vietnam, which came under heavy attack earlier this year.

Initial reports said 13 Vietnamese were killed and 25 wounded, and that 32 enemy soldiers were killed and three captured in the various attacks.

The report said the Viet Cong still occupied buildings of Dalat University, a Roman Catholic seminary and a Catholic church. Sources said the enemy was holding civilians hostage in the church area.

Hundreds of South Vietnamese infantrymen, backed by armored personnel carriers, rolled into the city to reinforce the military defenders, who bore the brunt of the initial attacks. The attacks began at about 2 a.m. local time.

Latest reports said government troops had surrounded the enemy at the three points still contested.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the enemy forces were difficult to root out because they were in populated areas. A spokesman said it appeared that the attack was carried out by specially trained commando units.

Sharp fighting was also reported in scattered parts of Cambodia, including the area around the provincial capital of Prey Veng.

A South Vietnamese commander, Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri, said: "There has been a strong resurgence of enemy activities along the Vietnamese-Cambodian border."

Bullet Is Removed From GI's Heart

By J. F. WOLKERSTORFER

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Army surgeons have removed a Viet Cong bullet from the heart of a 20-year-old American soldier in what they call an operation unprecedented in the Vietnam war.

Pfc. Donald H. Light of Redwood, Ill., was reported in good condition today and was able to talk with members of his family by telephone.

"We've never had a case like this before," said Dr. Elias Hanna of Geneva, N.Y., cardiac surgeon at the U.S. Army's 3rd Field Hospital in Saigon.

"There have been cases in which the heart was punctured by fragments, but as far as I know, this is the first time a whole bullet has been removed from the heart."

"Usually an AK-47 bullet will shatter the heart, it's a miracle that Don Light's alive."

Light and other members of Bravo Company, 2nd Battalion, 8th Cavalry, 1st Air Cavalry Division, were on a dusk patrol about six miles inside Cambodia Tuesday when an AK-47 bullet hit Light in the left shoulder, broke a rib and went through his left lung into his heart.

The bullet made two holes in the heart and came to rest at the bottom of the right ventricle, which pumps blood to the lungs.

Light was taken to Firebase Gonder, inside Cambodia about 90 miles north of Saigon, where medics sealed his chest wound and began giving him plasma. He was then evacuated by helicopter to Quan Loi, some 30 miles to the south.
